ARD of Juo. E. was elected Governor of Ma-ryland for the ensuing year. And on the day following, William Potter, Thomas C. Wor-thington, Samuel Turner, George W. Pur-nell, and Robert W. Bowie, Esquires, were elected councillors.

We have it now in our power to announc to the public, that the important cause bepany, complainants, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, defendants, after a la Ohio Canal Company, defendants, after a laborious argument in the Court of Appeals, has been finally decided. Yesterday the opinion of the court was delivered by the chief justice, geversing the deep of the Chancellor, upon the ground that an all Company is entitled to the prior chacke of route.— Whatever may have been the wishes of different individuals in regard to the result of this important cause, all must reside that it this important cause, all must rejoice that it is now finally disposed of.

More of Major Barry's BAD MANAGE-MENT.—A gentleman who left Baltimore on Monday morning in the mail stage, brought in his pocket "the great Globe itself," and handed it to us at 15 minutes after 1 P. M. of the same day it was issued; and this with-out the aid of rail roads, or any other roads but those which we had fifteen years ago.— Who can endure such management of post office concerns? If he goes on at this rate, every thing like news will be will become every knowledge of all events will become every knowledge of all ev where simultaneous.

> COMMUNICATED. RAIL ROAD ESSAY. Essay No. 3.

Illustrative of what has been already said in relation to the utility of rail ways, are the experiments of accentific men—men, who have apparently, bestowed much labour on these sources of national prosperity. And the in-genalty of those individuals has kept pace with the arduousness of the undertaking.— Such is the march of the human intellect, that it passes the must gigantic projecter and reduces to order every material within its reach. In the construction of rail roads, ex-perience has sufficiently demonstrated, toat skill and solidity are indispensable. Since to impart to a work, a frail and inartificial character is no part of economy—Durability should be regarded in the construction of all expensive works. Much depends on the meexpensive works. Much depends on the me-chanism of a work; more particularly, ene that is to be in constant use, as for instance, a public rail-way. A brasion of the rails should be guarded against, as of no triffing importance, since they are costly and difficult to replace.

Leeda, Sunderland, & New Castle on Tyne, farnish he most approved lines of rail-ways, especially the latter. The relevant from New Castle to Carlisle, is a model for imitation.

Of Mr. Wirt.

Baltimore, Wednesday morning. ? December 14, 1831.

To the Rev. William Nevins.

Mr DEAR SIR,—I had hoped that I was about to escape the prevailing influenza, but I find my health so much impaired by it, this morning, that it will not be in my power to attend the temperance meeting of this evening, as I proposed to have done. In this and in all things, "His will be done, his holy will, howe'er it cross my own." I should have been glad to have been permitted to bear my humble testimony to the cause of temperance. I have been for more than forty years a close observer of life and manners in various parts of the United States, and I know not the evil that will bear a moment's comparison with intemperance. It is no exaggeration to say, as has been often said, that this single cause has produced more vice, crime, poverty, and wretchedness in every form, domestic and social, than all the other ills that scourge us combined. in truth it is scarcely possible to meet with misery in any shape, in this country, which will not be found on examination to have proceeded, directly or indirectly from the excessive use of ardent spirits. Want is one of its immediate consequences. The sad spectacle of starving and destitute families, and of ignorant, half and destitute lannines, and or ignorant, na-naked, vicious children, ought never to be presented in a country like this, which the domand for labour is constant, the field un-limited, the sources of supply inexhaustible, and where there is none to make us afraid; and it never would be presented, or very rarely indeed, were it not for the desolation brought upon families by the general use of this deadly poison. It paralyses the arm, the brain, the heart. All the best affections, all the energies of the mind, wither under its influence. The man becomes a maniac. and is locked up in a hospital, or imbrues his hands in the blood of his wife and children. and is sent to the gallows, or doomed to the penitentiary; or, if we escapes these con-quences, he becomes a walking pestilent the earth, miserable in himself, and ourn-some to all who behold him. How often do we see, too, whole families contaminated by the vicious example of the parent; husbands, wives, daughters, and sons, all drunk-ards and furies; sometimes wives murdering their nusbands; at others, husbands their wives; and worst of all, if worse can be in such a group of horrors, children murdering their parents. But below this grade of crime, how much is there of unden and untold misery, throughout our otherwise happy land, proceeding from this fatal cause alone. I am persuaded that if we could have a statis-New Castle to Carman.

Previous to the survey of a route, upon thin.

Previous to the survey of a route, upon which a railway is to be formed, the amount of lading that may be expected to araverse, it in sither direction, must be accurately ascertained. Should the lading in different directions approach an equality of bulk and weight, the read is to be set out in lines as nearly lated as practicable; while in the other case, and an isclination is required, as may mest though verbally admitted, is not seen and felt in all its enormity. If some fatal plague, of a contagiour character, were imported into our country, and had commenced its range. tical survey and report of the affairs of unpround and vigor us measures at once adopted to repress and extinguish it; but what are the most fearful plagues that evercarried death the most fearful plagues that evercarried death and havoe in their train through the eastern countries, compared with this? They are only occasional; this is perennial. They are confined by elimates or place; this malady is of all climites, and all times and places. They kill the body at once; this consumes both body and sout by a linguing and dreadful death, involving the dearest, connections in the yorfex of ruin. What parent, how, ever examplary himself, can level feel that his son is safe while the lighing fountain of his son is safe while the living fountain of poison is within his reach? God grant that poison is within his reach? God grant that it may soon become a fountain scaled, its our country at least. What a relief, what a delightful relief, would it be to turn from the swell and horrid past to the pure, peaceful, and happy future to see the springs of lite, and feeling, and intelligence, renewed on every hand; health; industry, and prosperity, glowing uround us; the alters of domestic ocace and love rekindled in every family.
